100 Mile Winds, Hail And Heavy Rain Sweep Region

Mokena, New Lenox and Frankfort escaped serious damage Monday afternoon when a severe thunderstorm struck the Joliet area. Also hit were Orland Park, Palos and Worth areas.

A chicken house on the Edward McLaughlin farm, two miles south of New Lenox was piled into a new machine shed, it was reported, and there were a number of trees blown down. Power and telephone lines were knocked out at various points and trouble crews from the Public Service and Illinois Bell worked thru the night. Trees were damaged thruout the region.

The Public Service company reported that more than 400 calls reporting wire damage were received at the superintendent's office within an hour and a half.

Heavy rains fell in this area but they were showers compared to the deluge that struck Joliet. Hail also fell in various sections of the county.

At the Joliet municipal airport, west of the city, gusts of wind of 105 miles an hour were recorded before the instrument itself was blown away and on the east side of the city George Downey, of Barr Elm avenue, an observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, reported gusts up to 135 miles an hour before the wind made off with his gage.

Two 2-story homes under construction at Colonial Village, a development at the intersection of U. S. 66 and Alt. 66, about 15 miles north of Joliet, were flattened by the wind and three other homes also in the process of being built were reported considerably damaged. A family in a dwelling at Caton Farm rd., Kenneth Sanford, his wife and two small children, took refuge in the basement when their roof was wrecked and escaped injury.

Break Ground For Pavilion

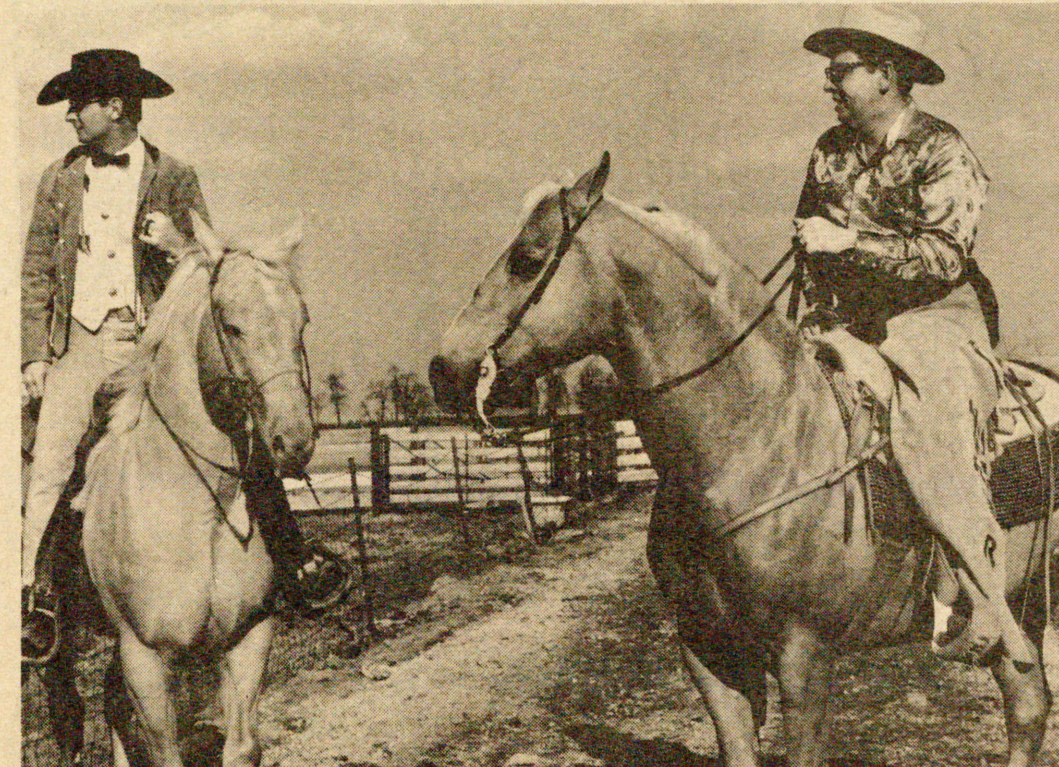

Work on the pavilion to be built in Frankfort's community park is scheduled to get underway this week.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were conducted last weekend by the S.P.C., a group of Frankfort citizens sponsoring the pavilion project. Mayor George Sangmeister turned the first shovelful of earth and the contractor was to move in this week to start building.

The cost of this section of the pavilion is approximately $2,000, without the roofing, according to Mrs. Irving Rudman, S.P.C. chairman, but she added that the Frankfort Lions club has generously agreed to provide the material and a labor for the roof.

The Pavilion Savings Account at present was a balance of $1,531.90. Contributions to the fund include $200 from the Women's club; $45 from the Royal Neighbors; $50 from St. Peter's Women's Guild and $10 from St. Peter's Brotherhood. The S.P.C. has raised $1,235.66.

Arthur Marti has donated two gallons of paint for the pavilion and Dr. Rudman has given two posts for the volleyball court. The SPC is grateful for all aid, the chairman said.

Clobber Lincoln-Way Bond Issue 2,046 To 1,369

By a decisive vote last Saturday the proposal to issue a three quarters of a million dollar bond issue to build an addition to Lincoln-Way high school was defeated and the program for enlarging the school to meet enrollment needs has been set back for an indefinite period.

The bond issue was beaten 2,046 to 1,369, a margin of 677 votes. When the bond issue was first brought up, Feb. 24 of this year, it was defeated by the narrow margin of 69 votes.

The high school board has not indicated what action, if any, it plans to take. A spokesman pointed out that there was no practical purpose involved now in having another election on the same proposal 60 days hence. Even if approved 60 days from now it would be too late to start construction in time for rooms to be available at the beginning of the 1963 school year, the spokesman said.

This means, it was said, that beginning in the fall of 1963 some of the students at Lincoln-Way are due to attend classes on a shift basis.

Supt. A. Hunter Chapman said he believed that it would be better to put the upper classmen on a shift basis than the freshmen and sophomores. He thought it important that the new pupils become thoroughly oriented. There is a practical side too -- transportation. If the school adopts split shifts,

Chapman said, it cannot afford to increase the bus service to provide pupils with transportation. This will mean students can walk or be hauled to school by their parents, or drive themselves. Freshmen and sophomores are not old enough to drive cars, it was pointed out.

Proponents of the bond issue regretted its defeat, some of them pointed out, because they fear that the overcrowding that appears inevitable will have an adverse effect on the educational standards of the school.

Most of the opposition, observers believe stemmed from what they describe as a "taxpayers revolt." They cite the fact that the people have no voice in federal and state taxes and have to take what is imposed but on local levels they have an opportunity to express themselves on the tax question and they do. There have been repeated defeats of bond issues and tax increases in the Chicago area attributed to this factor.

However, in the Lincoln-Way district other factors were involved too, it was said. Considerable feeling against participation in a junior college program has developed in the district. Opponents of the junior college district claim the Lincoln-Way board is responsible for becoming involved and so oppose any project favored by the board, such as the bond issue.

Whatever reasons persons had for opposing the bond issue they said it with votes in the referendum last Saturday.

The only area in which the proposal carried was in Arbury Hills and there by but seven votes. Lincoln Estates, which in previous elections had always supported every request made by the Lincoln-Way district, rejected the bond issue.

The total vote cast was 3,415 but there were 46 spoiled ballots.

The vote in each of the six polling places was as follows:

	YES	NO
Arbury Hills	60	53
Linc. Est.	78	95
Manhattan	183	320
Fkft.	217	301

Driver Escapes Death When RI Train Hits Cattle Truck

Elmer Nelson, 54, Spencer road, Joliet, had a narrow escape from death Monday morning when the cattle truck he was driving was struck by a west-bound Rock Island passenger train on the Hamilton road crossing at the west edge of Mokena.

He was taken to Silver Cross hospital in the Baskerville ambulance and is being held there for treatment. He suffered cuts about the face and head and possible internal injuries.

Nelson was traveling northwest and apparently didn't see or hear the train in time. He was almost across the tracks when the train struck the rear of his truck, according to information obtained by Deputy Sheriff's Gus Hendrickson and Arthur Schultz, who investigated the accident.

The train was traveling 58 miles an hour, according to information obtained from the crew by the deputies. The truck was dragged about 50 feet, it was said, and bounced off and rolled back, coming to rest on the approach where Hamilton joins with Francis road.

The top of the truck cab was crushed in on the driver's side and Nelson was trapped in the vehicle. It took considerable work by men attracted to the scene to free him.

The accident occurred about 10:15. The train involved was a special suburban passenger. The conductor was H. E. McFayden, 49, of 2341 Vernon, Blue Island. The engineer, Ralph Stephen, 62, resides at 2213 Olive Street, Blue Island.

Hamilton road crosses the tracks at a diagonal and there are no gates or warning signals. Persons who use the crossing -- and there are many who do -- say that it is difficult to see trains when approaching Francis road. Coming off of Francis road and traveling southeast one has a good view of any trains that may be approaching, it was said.

Nelson was alone in the truck and the vehicle was empty when the accident occurred. The truck was practically demolished except that the wheels and tires appeared intact.

Krusemark Again Heads Lincoln-Way High Board

The Lincoln-Way high school board has organized for the coming year. Albert H. Krusemark of Frankfort, was the unanimous choice of the board for re-election as president as was Lester Case of Manhattan, for vice-president.

Elias Brown, Mokena, was elected secretary, replacing J. Earl Robinson of New Lenox. Mrs. Beatrice Link, Lincoln Estates, and George Preston, New Lenox, are the new members of the board, replacing James A. Dixon, Lincoln Estates, and Mr. Robinson.

The board is now comprised of Krusemark, Case, Brown, Mrs. Link, Preston, C. L. Klasing, New Lenox, and Lorin Schleeter, Manhattan.

It was voted to continue to hold the board's regular meeting on the second Thursday of each month, in the school at 8 p.m. The fourth Thursday will also be used as a meeting night, if necessary.

The board will have an auditing committee that will meet and go over the bills prior to each meeting. There will be a different committee named for each quarter. The committee that will serve for the current quarter is made up of Case and Schleeter.

Appointed to the budget committee were Schleeter, Preston and Brown.

A committee also was appointed to review and make recommendations for a statement of the board's policies. Members of this committee are Preston, Mrs. Link, Schleeter, Supt. A. Hunter Chapman, and Asst. Supt. Donald D'Amico.

Mokena Youth First From Area To Join Peace Corps

John Lee Marcoux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Marcoux, Sylvandale Farm, was informed by telegram from Sargent Shriver, Jr., director of the Peace Corps, that he has been selected for training for a Peace Corps project in Liberia calling for elementary school teachers. Training will begin on July 10 at a training site in the United States or Puerto Rico.

John will graduate in June from Harvard college with a bachelor of arts degree in English literature. He is the first Lincoln-Way high school graduate to attend Harvard.

Liberia is one of Africa's oldest independent states. Its ties to the United States date from 1847 when it was established thru efforts of American philanthropists as a settlement for freed slaves. Today, Liberia's leaders, realizing that education is essential to its social, economic and political growth, have asked the Peace Corps to help.

Liberia is a country of 42,000 sq. miles on the West Coast of Africa. The climate is tropical, and the average rainfall is about 116 inches. The population is estimated at 2,500,000 people.

While Liberia's future is bright its present needs are great. New schools are needed and in fact the government has launched a program to build one hundred new elementary schools, but it cannot supply qualified teachers to staff them. Here is where the Peace Corps can help. The Liberian government has asked the Peace Corps to supply elementary school teachers to work with the Liberian teachers in rural schools.

Before they go to Liberia, the trainees will be given a thoro preparation in every as-

Brownie Troop Visits Nursing Home Patients

Members of Brownie Scout Troop 333 with leaders Mrs. Edwin Meyers and Mrs. Robert Musich, delivered nut cups, candy and party favors to the 80 patients of the Lincoln Nursing home at Joliet. The girls entertained the patients with two songs — "The Brownie Smile Song" and "Here Comes Peter Cottontail". They then made a special visit to the rooms of the troop's newly adopted "Grandmother" and "grandfather" — Miss Mary Barnette and Ernest Fritz.

The troop returned to the Lincolnwood Drive-In where everyone enjoyed a cool drink while waiting for their parents to pick them up.

A strong wind spoiled an otherwise perfect day by slamming the door of Kirk's Service Station on the fingers of Candy Crisman's right hand. The injury was not too serious altho Candy may have some trouble doing her second grade homework this week.

At the next meeting girls will practice charcoal sketching. They are planning to enter the International Girl Scout art competition entitled "Picture Your Home Frontier" — a project designed to encourage all Girl Scouts to draw, paint, sketch, or take a picture depicting their local heritage.

The Schmulh school directors will hold their monthly meeting Thursday night May 10 at the school beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Children who will enter first grade in Schmulh school in September are too be registered by their parents Friday May 4 between 1 and 3 p.m. at the school.

Any child may enter first grade if born on or before Dec. 1, 1956. A birth certificate or hospital certificate will be acceptable as confirmation of the child's age.

Medical and dental forms will be distributed so parents may have them filled out and returned to the school with their child on opening day in September.

The newly formed Boy Scout troop No. 41 of Schmulh school experienced its first out-door activity on Saturday April 14. The boys met at the home of their Scoutmaster Ed Johnson, at 10 a.m. to receive their instructions. The Scoutmaster and outdoorsman, Joe Archie instructed the boys on all rules pertaining to their hike.

They hiked along Hickory creek to Wolf road, stopping many times to explore interesting things. They enjoyed cooking out-of-doors, instructed by their leader in out-door activities.

The trail was west from Lincolnwood on Route 30 to Lincoln Way high school road, north to Hickory creek, east on Wolf road and back home. Now, it was stated, the boys understand why they are named Tenderfoots. Sore feet, tired backs and a few scratches, said the parents, and no argument what-so-ever about going to bed that night.

Eight of the boys have now passed their Tenderfoot requirements — they are: Robert Newsome, Randy Konkeli, Jerry Konkeli, Michael Archie, Herman Beck, Don Wescott, and Ralph Oldt and Dennis Hocker.

Daylight Time Can Be Dangerous Time

It is frequently stated by the safety experts that the daylight saving time serves to reduce the number of automobile fatalities. They point out that having daylight in the rush hours has been a big factor in reducing the number of auto-pedestrian encounters as well as collisions between cars.

But they also wish to remind motorists that daylight saving has hazards as well as benefits.

Warmer weather and more daylight hours brings out the youngsters in the late afternoons, points out J. J. Cavanagh, president of the Chicago Motor club, and this fact presents a great hazard indeed.

Children engrossed in play are apt to give little heed to their surroundings, nor do they always confine themselves to areas sheltered from traffic.

In urban areas particularly one finds youngsters making use of the streets as play area. They play ball in the streets, they use streets as skating rinks or convenient places to pedal tricycles or circle about on bikes.

One also finds similar conditions in the smaller communities, especially in rural subdivisions where houses are close together and yards are small. Most subdivisions today are required to have surfaced streets and the stretches of blacktop are very inviting to children.

And since youngsters at play give little thought to the dangers of traffic it is essential that the motorist be doubly vigilant.

A youngster chasing a ball may suddenly pop out from between parked cars...several of them may come rolling down grade from drives or side streets in wagons or on tricycles...youngsters on bicycles sometime ride in packs on both sides of the street, cutting from one side to the other or wobble out in front of oncoming cars...children playing tag or other running games frequently dash out into the street.

It is not surprising that children are struck and injured and sometimes killed by cars. The only surprising thing about it is that there are not more such accidents.

Good brakes and quick reflexes save a lot of youngsters but there are times when brakes and reflexes fail, or that the appearance of a child in a traffic lane is so sudden that brakes and reflexes are of no avail regardless of how good they may be.

The number of children and the number of cars are increasing every year, parents can do a lot to help. They should, and it is probable that most of them do, instruct their youngsters in sound safety practices for pedestrians and impress upon them to seek recreation in play areas instead of the streets.

One drawback is that there are not enough supervised recreation areas to meet the needs.

So that brings us back to the beginning. Motorists must resign themselves to the fact that daylight saving time and vacation time--which is only a few weeks away--are dangerous times and to be constantly on the alert.

On Second Thought

By GLENN F. LOGAN

If the United States government, the United Nations, or any other government, nation or organization is shopping around these days for a man of decision, we should like to recommend a man.

Last week we received some press releases from the college of agriculture of the University of Illinois. We had no sooner read the slug on one piece when we said to no one in particular--the office being empty for the moment but for us--"There is a man."

There were blocks of red, yellow and blue on the stationery but the subject needed more attention than that. There should have been flags waving and music from a vast marching band with 76 trombones leading the way.

"Learn to Recognize Eatable Mushrooms," ran the slug above an Urbana dateline.

There it was folks, a clear call--on the line--take it or leave it--full speed ahead and blast the torpedoes. Most authors dealing with wild mushrooms hedge a bit -- they yes and they no, and they hem and haw and give you that on-the-other-hand.

They describe Mushroom "A" in detail. Mushroom "A" is one of the edible variety. They describe Mushroom "B", a poisonous variety, and oddly enough the description tallies with the one given of Mushroom "A." If there are colored illustrations they look alike too.

But there is none of this hedging by O.L. Hogsett, described in the piece as a safety specialist of the university.

Mr. Hogsett meets the question of how to tell an edible mushroom from a lethal one with a positive approach, probably the only time the subject has ever been dealt with in this manner.

"It's mushroom season again," the piece begins and then goes on to say that anyone who uses common sense can gather mushrooms with safety, quoting Mr. Hogsett to that effect.

This might lead someone to believe that what was meant was that if one stayed out of pastures containing bulls, avoided poison ivy and respected no trespassing signs that mushroom hunting was as safe as golfing.

But Mr. Hogsett was speaking of mushrooms.

"The main guide for safe hunting," he is further quoted, "is to learn to identify the 'big four' eatable kinds of mushrooms."

Take the giant puffball, for instance -- it is white, round and conspicuous. One can't mistake the GP for any other mushrooms, says Mr. Hogsett, as there is no stem running thru it. If a puffball is white all the way thru and no stem runs thru the meat, says Hogsett, it is safe to eat.

The meadow mushroom, he goes on to say, is grown commercially and anyone who wants to learn more about them can buy some at a store and examine them.

It seems to us that Mr. Hogsett there may be substantial advantages to business by emphasis on fact that our production must compete on the world market, to attain the export level required to keep our level of payments in balance.

This level of payments point is a condition wherein (in terms of gold) our credits gained thru exports, will equal our debts created by imports.

The cold war has been most expensive, as are all wars, but this one has had its costs increased by the necessity to keep ahead of Russia in this age of realization of scientific dreams.

The need for improvement in our production machinery has been evident in comparison with such machinery in western European countries. These countries had much of their equipment destroyed by the war and replaced at our most modern level in many instances.

Western European countries have had a national policy of taxation which fostered the idea of keeping production equipment at a high level of modernization. Our tax schedules have not recognized the need to acquire funds for capitol improvement.

Some of the more vocal critics of industry, have pushed the idea that capital for modernization should not be largely generated by a company's own current earnings. This idea is not one which stands realistic study. If funds are to be obtained from any source other than its own earnings, this obviously means borrowing from investors. Investors have no interest in a situation which is not earning money on a strict accounting basis.

sett could have started with this advice and ended there, and left the giant puffball, the morel and the oyster mushrooms out of it.

But there is nothing to it, really, he says. The morel is better known as the sponge mushroom and is the most commonly hunted, says Hogsett and adds: "Once you have seen this sponge-like mushroom, you can distinguish it from the common toadstool at a glance."

The last of the "big four" in Mr. Hogsett's list is the oyster mushroom, so called because of its shape. The piece from the ag. college goes on to say it is also called the log or wood oyster because it grows in wooded areas.

We lived in a wooded area once and there were a lot of mushrooms or toadstools growing there. Maybe we are labeling the oyster mushroom but we recall seeing some sort of fungus attached to logs and stumps and if they were the oyster variety anyone can have our share -- they looked most revolting.

"Like the other varieties," the piece winds up, "it (the oyster mushroom) is easy to identify. The stem is not attached to the center of the cap, but on one side. Its most distinctive feature are the gills that run down into the stem."

It was while living in the woods that we read several books on mushrooms, thinking that while we were in the midst of plenty we should enjoy them.

But after reading about them we continued to buy our mushrooms at the store. The experts we read differed now and then regarding the edibility of certain varieties but they all agreed on this point -- the sure way to discover whether a mushroom was safe to eat was to eat it -- if you didn't get sick or didn't die, it was safe.

But they warned you that in picking others that looked just like the ones you had proved safe -- they could be different, deadly different.

When you get right down to it there isn't anything wrong with just a thick, tender juicy steak served plain.

FARM ADVISER
TINLEY PARK-KE, 2-4369
Response to the changing educational needs of people is the watchword of the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Illinois.

Primary program emphasis will continue to be with farm people, according to J. B. Claar, C.E.S. associate director. But substantial programs will also be conducted with related agricultural service and marketing industries.

In addition, Cooperative Extension will work with communities on economic and social development and on public issues related to family living, Claar said. Changing problems of people will require increased program emphasis on agricultural marketing, community development and public affairs issues of this type in the years ahead.

Cooperative Extension is recognizing the growing interdependence of rural and urban people, he said, and their common interest in such programs as horticulture, 4-H Club work, home economics, community development and agriculturally related public affairs.

Cooperative extension programs are planned with the help of the county agricultural and home economics extension councils, Claar stated. These county councils have been assigned by the University to work with the local University of Illinois staff members--the extension farm and home advisers and their assistants. Claar explained that this use of local leadership is a cornerstone of cooperative extension work and that lay leaders help in many ways to make the extension programs more effective.

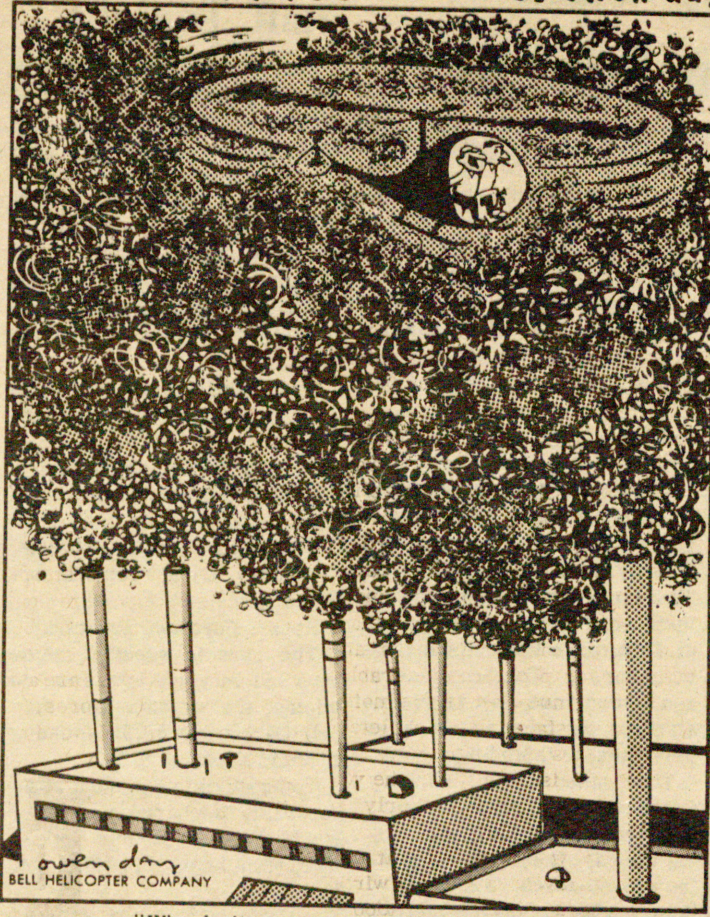

Before a modern pesticide may be placed on the market, the company manufacturing it may spend over $2 million on research. Even this amount can't "build-in" safety for its users if they don't read label directions.

According to law, any pesticide--for insect, plant disease, nematode, rodent or weed control--must have label approval and must be registered with the U. S. Department of Agriculture before it can move across state lines. To meet this approval, the pesticide must perform as claimed and must not injure man or living organisms, other than those it is designed to control, when it is used according to directions.

CONGRESSMAN N. M. MASON TWO SIDES TO EVERY CONTROVERSY:

In the steel price controversy that raged between the Kennedy brothers and the steel industry there are two sides. "Big Steel" is big and powerful. But "Big Government" is bigger. Its chief executive enjoys virtually unrestricted access to radio and television as a means of harassing any industry which falls to fall into line.

Three years ago the steel companies granted increases in wages without a commensurate increase in steel prices. In the face of steadily mounting costs of production, including four increases in steel workers' wages, and in the face of increasing foreign-made steel imports, an adjustment in steel prices became necessary, especially in view of the 10¢ per hour increase in fringe benefits that will go into effect on July 1st next and will cost $100 million.

Since 1958, U. S. Steel has spent $1.185 billion for modernization and replacement of plant facilities. This required borrowing $800 million, which must be repaid out of future profits. During these three years steel profits have dropped to the lowest level since 1952.

Steel wages during the past 17 years have increased 175%, and the increase in fringe benefits has been 644%. The total increase in dollar pay during this period has been from $2.79 per hour to $4.10 per hour, or 24%.

Our real concern is the administration's arrogant assumption of power to dictate prices, to increase wages, and to punish industry if it does not toe the mark.

It remains to be seen whether submission to the President's policy constituted merely a strategic retreat from hostile public opinion aroused by the White House, or whether the various steel companies can somehow operate at the present, allegedly "tightening" "profit squeeze."

TAXPAYER WOULD BE SOAKED AGAIN:

"The Kennedy farm program eventually would make every American consumer dependent upon the Federal Government for his food supply. Under this proposal, the government would determine who could grow how much of what crop at a price set by the government. The taxpayer would be saddled with huge additional sums to take more land out of production. The consumer would be forced to pay higher prices at the market thru the government's artificial price program. The American farmer would be little more than an economic serf, dependent on Uncle Sam for his livelihood. The taxpayer would be soaked again, while the consumer would be faced with an increase in the cost of living," so declares Representative Charles M. Teague (R.-Calif.).

UNNECESSARY SPENDING INCREASING:
Senator Byrd of Virginia, the watchdog of the treasury, has pointed out certain facts which show that unnecessary spending is increasing. We should take note of these facts and heed his warning:

"Nonmilitary federal expenditures in the first seven months of this year, thru January, 1962, ran 10 per cent higher than during the same period last year. Total federal expenditures in the July-January period were $3.9 billion, and military expenditures for migratory housing, farmers can pick them up at the office in Tinley Park or drop us a line and an application will be sent to you promptly.

"We have been the policeman, the banker, and the Santa Claus for the free world more than 15 years. Recent figures showed U. S. foreign aid has totaled more than $100 billion, and it is continuing.

"Meanwhile we are faced with a menacing deficit in the balance of international payments between the United States and nations we have assisted. It has run as high as $4 billion a year.

"This situation has resulted in a drain on our gold supply. We have lost 30 per cent of our gold. I emphasize: We have lost 30 per cent of our gold reserves.

"In addition to $300 billion in direct debt, we have assumed contingent liabilities at home and abroad amounting to untold billions more.

"Neither our form of government nor our system of enterprise can survive insolvency. All of us know that we cannot continue much longer to spend and spend, and tax and tax, and borrow and borrow."

BOARD OF APPEALS OF ORLAND PARK, ILLINOIS

By Charles Cooper, Chairman

AWAITING RESURRECTION

Dear Sir:

On the 29th of April, last Sunday, funeral services were held to commemorate the passing of one of the most dedicated of the four communities' civil servants, one whose death surely marks the end of an era and the beginning of long and deep felt privation in the New Lenox - Manhattan, Mokena - Frankfort area. The reporter refers to the entombment of Quality Education, who met his highly publicized end last Saturday by a violent death on the premises of the polling places of the four towns.

The untimely end of this invaluable mentor was eulogized by the most Reverend Spirit of American-Progress, Rev. American-Progress, due to his grief at the passing of a close and highly endeared friend, was forced to limit his remarks, the text of which follows:

"Dearly beloved, we are gathered here today to commemorate the passing of one whose contributions to these communities, this state, this nation as a whole, have enabled us to progress as a country and as individuals to a level of power and prosperity undreamed of by our forefathers, unrivaled by our competitors.

"The blessings of Mr. Education's works are felt by all of us whenever we drive our automobiles, enter our wonderfully complex homes, watch our televisions, use our tractors and applying the agricultural know-how devised by him, reap the harvests of our bountiful fields. Indeed, everytime we use any of the myriad of modern devices perfected under his wise leadership so as to save our labor, time, and money, making an infinitely better existence for all of us, we are feeling the bounty of our friendship with Quality Education.

"It was only thru his guidance that our children were able to grow into strong and intelligent citizens of our democracy, earning more money for themselves and their families than would have ever been possible without Quality Education's aid. It will be thru his absence in the halls of our high school that our young ones now in attendance or soon to be so, will be deprived of the God-given rights to better their minds and abilities to the fullest extent possible. Thru the perversion of this basic democratic principle, our young ones will be irreparably injured, maimed in a manner so deadly that they will bear the scars of inadequate and incomplete training to the end of their days!

"Here friends are a friend indeed, the reasons for his loss being ones we would do well to consider. Quality Education, during his tenure at Lincoln-Way was, I am sorry to say, a sorely harassed public servant. He required love and support, yet we gave him derision and scorn. He labored incessantly, in the face of decadence and poverty, to guide our children along pathways of truth, knowledge and light. Education struggled in vain to instill the spirit of St. Paul the Divine when he said in the First Thessalonians (5:21): 'Prove all things; hold fast that which is good.' Yet even as Peter to Our Savior, we betrayed Quality Education at the crowning of the cock, allowed violent hands to be laid on him, allowed him to be led away to his doom.

"Yet in the end, the analogy used to describe the end of our friends diverges. For the power of resurrection lies in our own hands. Only we as citizens of this freedom loving democracy have the power to resurrect the one to whom we owe our every lives and livelihoods. The power to draw forth Quality Education from his grave is ours. God grant that we do so before the impact of his departure strikes down our children and our children's children with the odious darkness of an oppression of ignorance!"

At this juncture the reporter cannot accurately gauge the impact of Rev. American-Progress' remarks. Only time will adequately do so. Quality Education was then laid to rest, Prometheus Libra reporting, out of their own pockets, that it is not manna sent from Heaven. They would not handle their own private finances as carelessly as they handle tax money. Could that be the reason for the incredible costs of building schools?

Many of this group in opposition to the present plans are teachers, or past teachers, and many with college educations. They want to see Lincoln-Way become known by the quality of the graduates it turns out, by the excellence of its faculty, not on the basis of its elaborate buildings.

Show us some simpler plans, place emphasis on real education of our children. Then we will show you how we support and approve education. Many of us have made real sacrifices to educate our own children. We are ready and willing to make sacrifices to educate your children. We just don't want those sacrifices to be made in vain.

Very truly yours,
MARGARET THIEL

WANTS BETTER, CHEAPER SCHOOLS

Dear Sir:

The defeat of the Lincoln-Way bond issue calls for a reappraisal of the proposed building plans, a whole new set of plans for good, substantial buildings to be built at much lower cost.

I am one of the group which has worked hard to defeat the present plans. Why? Not because we are opposed to building needed rooms at Lincoln-Way, but because we feel quality with economy should be our goal. If we are to build again in 1965, in 1968, we should be counting every penny expended, cut down in every way possible so that we may have adequate buildings, light and airy classrooms, and well-paid teachers to do the best teaching job. We have not been happy over the fact that our teachers at Lincoln-Way are among the lowest paid in the area, or perhaps THE lowest paid. We will never have a really good school until we place the emphasis on education where it belongs, on teaching.

We hear parents cry, "You have denied our children an education. What is wrong with elaborate buildings? They are the trend of the times." This, of course, is not true. The new trend is toward simplicity.

Inquire from your Lutheran, Catholic, Dutch Reformed friends how they can put up school buildings at a much lower cost than public school buildings. Do they build "cheaply"? Do they expect their schools to "fall down in ten years"? Of course not, they know they must build well or they cannot keep their schools in operation.

Sometimes when people are handling tax money they seem to forget that it must come right out of their own pockets, that it is not manna sent from Heaven. They would not handle their own private finances as carelessly as they handle tax money. Could that be the reason for the incredible costs of building schools?

Many of this group in opposition to the present plans are teachers, or past teachers, and many with college educations. They want to see Lincoln-Way become known by the quality of the graduates it turns out, by the excellence of its faculty, not on the basis of its elaborate buildings.

Show us some simpler plans, place emphasis on real education of our children. Then we will show you how we support and approve education. Many of us have made real sacrifices to educate our own children. We are ready and willing to make sacrifices to educate your children. We just don't want those sacrifices to be made in vain.

Business & Finance

By MAURICE P. ANGLAND
Steel pricing and the top level struggle, has pushed favorable business factors out of the news columns.

Auto sales and deliveries are at near record levels and Easter retail sales reached an all time high. Including imports, auto sales are now at an annual rate of about 7,250,000 which is close to the record level of 1955. Leading financial journals and services note that the business level has been at a good pace, but somewhat less fast than had been predicted earlier in the year.

The stock market has been reflecting something of investors concern as to the profit squeeze. There has been disappointment in fact profits did not increase at a rate close to sales increases. Business analysts have noted that there has been a considerable rise in manufacturing productivity and this held prices down. The price - squeeze is a matter of competition which is normal in periods of excess capacity.

However, it is expected that prices will tend to harden now. Some comments on the steel issue, are that this will have the effect of showing business and government that their problems are mutual rather than diverse.

The May issue of Fortune continues to express optimistic predictions for the business level.

Steel is expected to have total production figure of about 118 million tons which is well above last year. They predict record highs for production and use in 1963.

The steel dispute is expected to push enactment of legislation for more realistic depreciation charges for tax purposes on new plant and facilities.

Some comments on the steel dispute, express thought that

Hints For Homeowners

BY JAMES FIZZELL
ASS'T. FARM ADVISER

Clover mites will be a pest in many homes this spring. When clover mites invade a home they appear as tiny dark red or almost black specks which over-run floors, walls, furniture and window panes and get into beds and clothing. Their presence in the home seems to be due to a lost wondering search of food and warmth. They are a nuisance only and they are not a menace to health. Clover mites spend the winter in cracks or crevices on the bricks or siding of the outside of the house. Activity begins in early spring, about the time the grass turns green, and ceases about the beginning of June. In summer the mites are usually no problem, but they may be a pest again in the fall. To control mites already in the house clean up the infestation with a vacuum cleaner.

Painting the doors, window frames or other places the mites might enter the home paint with Aramite 15-W or Chlorobenzilate 25-W at the rate of one ounce to a gallon of water, will prevent more mites from moving in. Mites spend the summer feeding in the lawn and migrate into the house in early fall. To prevent this migration, remove weeds and grass next to the foundation, leaving a strip of bare soil at least 18 inches wide. This strip may be planted with flowers such as zinnias, roses, chrysanthemums or salvia which do not attract clover mites. Dusting the area with Aramite is an additional aid. In most instances these measures alone will prevent migration of this pest into the home. In areas where infestations are particularly severe, outdoor treatment during summer may be necessary. Good outdoor control may be achieved by applying a pound of 5% Malathion dust per 1000 sq. ft. or by drenching the area within 10 feet of the foundation with 1/2% Malathion water-base spray. Since great numbers of mites may feed well down towards the bases of plants, apply enough spray material to penetrate the vegetative cover. Repeated applications may be necessary. A regular spraying or dusting program during the summer period will reduce mite population and subsequent migration in the home.

MULCHES applied to shrubs and evergreens and vegetables will help to prevent growth of weeds and to conserve moisture. Mulches soak up moisture and rainfall. They allow it to soak into the soil and thereby prevent surface evaporation, insuring an even moisture supply during the growing season. Germinating weeds are unable to reach light through the mulch and never become mature.

Mulching materials are classified as either organic or inorganic. Organic materials are broken down by soil microorganisms and become part of the soil. Inorganic materials are not broken down.

Examples of organic mulches are leaves, peat moss, straw, sawdust, shavings, grass clippings and paper.

Paper mulches are not ordinary paper, but a special paper treated with a fungicide and a preservative. These materials help to control diseases and make the paper more durable. A paper mulch conserves moisture satisfactorily, completely eliminates weed growth. Its best use is probably in the vegetable garden particularly on tomatoes.

If straw is used, buy it one year in advance. Cut the wires and leave the bales outdoors so that any weed seeds in the straw will sprout. These weeds will not mature due to lack of plant food in the straw. As a result, the straw will be nearly weed free when it is ready for use.

Straw, sawdust, and shavings will control weeds if applied 3 to 4 inches deep. Gardeners can either apply grass clippings directly to the soil as a mulch or incorporate them in a compost pile. However, if clippings come in contact with plant stems, they may cause rot. If inorganic materials are used as a mulch, add more fertilizer to the soil. For every one inch of mulch, apply an additional two pounds of fertilizer per 1000 square feet.

Two examples of inorganic materials are vermiculite and

Spring Dance Benefits School For Retarded

The sixth annual Spring dance sponsored by the Park Lawn Association for Mentally Retarded Children for the benefit of the Park Lawn school, 9438 S. Homan ave., Evergreen Park, will be held Friday, May 11, at the Silver Lake Country club, 147th st. and 82nd ave., Orland Park.

plastics. Vermiculite is a porous granular substance that holds moisture well.

Plastic sheets make a good mulch but must be perforated so that rain can reach the soil. Black plastic completely eliminates weed growth. White plastic can be fumigated to control weeds, but this is not practical for home gardeners.

Mulching materials are available at hardware stores, construction companies and nurseries.

The Park Lawn school, holding classes in the First Methodist church of Evergreen Park, now has an enrollment of 40 students living in Oak Lawn, Evergreen Park, Blue Island, Orland Park, Tinley Park, Worth, Chicago Ridge, Palos Heights, and southwest Chicago.

The school, which receives no state or federal funds to help with their costs, is operated by the Association, consisting of parents of the children and now has five teachers, including the director, Mrs. Ruth Strawn Moncrieff.

Funds are raised thru a tuition charge which covers about one third of the operating costs and the balance is received thru donations from the Community Chest of Oak Lawn, Evergreen Park and Hometown; social, civic, and service clubs, interested individuals, and by affairs, such as this dance, sponsored by the Association.

Kennedy's Talk Fails To Impress Financial World

By MAURICE P. ANGLAND

On Monday President Kennedy addressed the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D. C. The talk was heralded as an explanation of his action in regard to the steel price increase which was receded under pressure from governmental power.

In his talk to the business men, Mr. Kennedy over and over again expressed the need to improve the balance of payment position in international trade. Modernization of our industrial plants in a key to reduction of our costs so our products will compete in world trade.

"This administration, I assure you, shares your concern about the cost-price squeeze on profits," He expressed himself as convinced that there can be no modernization of prosperity and growth without modernization of plants and this cannot be done without adequate profits.

The President advised that the proposal for tax revisions permitting accelerated depreciation allowances on new plants and equipment and other aids to speeding up plant modernization, will be pushed hard.

He advised his audience that his administration will push as firmly against labor if labor's actions threaten administration goals on economic growth with price stability. He called attention to point that his administration is against anything less than a 40-hour week and attached feather bedding.

The retiring president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, took a slap at Attorney General Robert Kennedy when he stated, "I do not believe any department of the government should be used to take actions or cause threats to be made which have nothing to do with the functions of that department."

The stock market has evidenced the uneasiness of the financial community as to the administration attempts to regulate prices to cover favorable treatment to labor in wage negotiations.

The President expressed considerable optimism in the business picture of the present and that of next year at least.

The stock market declined on medium volume of trading, after the speech. Some of the analysts were of the opinion that the President advised, by indirectness, that he would resort to price fixing moves if this becomes necessary. Some others believed that the administration had fared so poorly in reaction of the business community that it is likely he will slow down any anti-business pressures and especially such threats as those of his brother in using the FBI, etc. to pressure business men.

Some ordinarily cool heads in business world point out that needed taxes and production for balancing world payments, cannot be had thru harassment of business and this alone will have a slowing effect. They also expressed the fact that economists generally believe that price controls are possible. Anywhere production controls are also had and effective controls of his kind require military aid.

Bureau Elects Mayfield as Secretary

Charles S. Mayfield, 45, has been elected secretary of the Illinois Agricultural Association by the board of directors, according to William J. Kuhfuss, IAA president.

Mayfield will succeed Wilfred Shaw who is retiring from the post on May 31, Kuhfuss said.

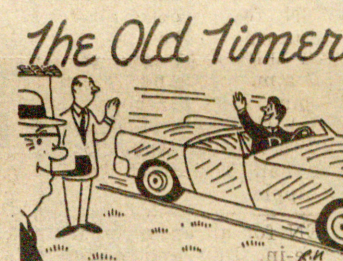

Since 1954, Mayfield has been secretary of organization of the IAA and in 1956 was named to the board of directors of the Illinois Agricultural Service Company, a management consulting firm which works with IAA affiliated companies.

In his new role as secretary, Mayfield will retain his administrative responsibilities in the organization division, Kuhfuss added.

A native of Hardin county in southern Illinois, Mayfield holds a bachelor's degree from Southern Illinois university and a master's degree from Oberlin (Ohio) college. Mayfield is currently serving as president of the Southern Illinois University Foundation. Before joining the IAA in 1942, Mayfield was a secondary school administrator.

He is a veteran of World War II and was discharged from the U.S. Navy in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant after serving three years in the South Pacific.

He and his wife, Geraldine, live in Bloomington. They have one daughter, a student at Illinois State Normal university; and two sons. The Mayfields are members of the Methodist church.

Open Joliet Auto Racing On Saturday

For the second week in a row, the Joliet Racing Association will try to open its 11th midjet auto racing season at Joliet Memorial Stadium Saturday night. Last week's scheduled opener had to be postponed because of inclement weather.

An added attraction this season will be the entry of midjet racers powered by Chevy II engines. These will compete with the standard Fords and Volvos.

Saturday's program consists of four heat races, a 15-lap semi-feature and 25-lap main event. Time trials will start at 7:30 p.m., and the first race at 8:30 p.m.
